

POLICE SAVE MAN FROM ANGRY MOB

Attack by Boarder on Landlord's Twelve-Year-Old Girl Rouses Staten Island Neighbors to Fury.

CLUBS AND KNIVES FIGURE IN CHASE FOR FUGITIVE.

Latter Is Beaten Into Insensibility and Would Have Been Killed Had Not Squad of Policemen Arrived in Time.

Only the prompt arrival of a squad of police saved Joachim Colavina, thirty-four years old, from being clubbed and cut to death by an infuriated mob, after he had attacked a twelve-year-old girl at Tompkinsville, N. Y. When rescued Colavina was unconscious, having been clubbed and stabbed in many places.

The man is a laborer, and for some time boarded with the Venditto family, at No. 29 Hannah street. Mary Venditto, the eldest daughter of the family, is an exceptionally well-developed girl of twelve, with big dark eyes and a very pretty face. She occupied a room between that of her parents and the one in which Colavina slept. Colavina seemed to be fond of the girl and was constantly petting her, but little attention was paid to it by the family.

Choked Pretty Girl.

While the parents were sleeping Colavina got the girl into his room and began to choke her. She screamed and her father jumped out of bed and grabbed a club. He struck Colavina on the head with it, but the latter, although staggered by the blow, managed to run from the house. Venditto, with his wife, gave chase and around the neighbors as he ran. The neighborhood is thickly settled with Italians, and the father was soon joined by a mob of men armed with clubs and knives. When they learned of the charge against Colavina they surrounded the house.

The chase was short, Colavina being overtaken in an open field but a few blocks from the house. The first man to reach him struck him on the head with a club, and he fell.

Police Save Man.

As fast as the others came up each either struck or stabbed him, fighting another in their eagerness to get at the man. The police had been notified and a squad of them arrived on the scene just in time to prevent Colavina's being killed. They fought their way through the crowd and surrounded the unconscious man. Only their announcement that the girl had not been injured quelled the mob.

Colavina was taken a prisoner to the Smith infirmary, where it was found that he had two stab wounds in the head and numerous cuts and bruises on his body.

PARK JEWEL THIEF GETS FOUR YEARS

Castleman, Who Lured Philadelphia Woman Here on Pretext of Putting Her on the Stage, Sentenced to Prison.

Judge Newburger in General Sessions to-day sentenced Charles T. Castleman, who stole jewelry valued at $3,000 from Mrs. Albert M. Rini, of Philadelphia, while riding in Central Park Sept. 29, to four years in Sing Sing Prison.

Philip Waldheimer, Castleman's attorney, pleaded guilty to grand larceny for his client. The lawyer told the Court that clemency should be shown the defendant because all of the jewelry stolen from Mrs. Rini had been recovered and given back to her.

"The defendant has already served one term in prison for a like offense," Judge Newburger told the lawyer, "and he can expect no leniency."

Castleman met Mrs. Rini in Philadelphia and told her he represented Henry W. Savage, the operatic manager. He promised to get her a position in an opera company. She accompanied Castleman, whom she knew as C. D. Rini, to this city and under the pretense of driving her to Col. Savage's office he took her through Central Park after visiting several resorts. In the park Castleman grabbed her jewelry, which she carried in a handbag, and fled with it. He was arrested after passing the jewelry and has since been in the Tombs.

CARS SMASHED IN WRECK.

RAHWAY, N. J., Oct. 26.—An east-bound freight train on the Pennsylvania Railroad was wrecked one mile west of this place early to-day. The accident is said to have been caused by the breaking of an axle. Eight cars left the tracks and were badly smashed. They were loaded with merchandise of various kinds. Some of the cars were burned to clear the way for traffic, which was interrupted for some time.

When the accident occurred the train hands jumped and escaped with a shaking up.

SPIRITED GIRL SLAPS ROBBER IN THE FACE

Later Identifies Prisoner, Who Is Said to Be Son of Respectable Baker—Detectives on Hunt for Three Accomplices.

Isidore Zutterin, sixteen years old, of No. 3 Jackson street, appeared in Essex Market Court to-day to answer a charge of assault and robbery preferred against him by Phillip Scherman, a tailor of No. 206 Monroe street. Scherman, according to the story he told the police, was walking along Henry street, between Grand and Scammon, with his niece, Fannie Cohen, seventeen years old, and her cousin, Jennie Scherman.

In the middle of the block they were surrounded by four hasty young fellows ranging between sixteen and twenty years. They jumped upon Scherman, one of them striking him from behind as two others beat him in the face. While three of them were assaulting Scherman the fourth went through his pockets and took his gold watch and chain.

Fannie Cohen, who is a spirited girl, tried to help her uncle and slapped the face of one of the robbers. She said she recognized him.

"I know you," she said, as she slapped him, "You are the son of a baker on Jackson street."

The four ran away and Scherman and the two young girls went to the Lenox street station, where they reported the attack. Four detectives were sent out and after a couple of hours' search returned with Zutterin. He was identified as one of the four robbers by Scherman and the two young women, and was held on a charge of assault and robbery.

Zutterin refused to tell who his companions were and denied having been implicated in the affair. The police hope to catch his companions to-day.

The body was sent to the Bradford street hospital, where it was found that the skull was fractured and several ribs had been broken. The body was then sent to the Brooklyn Morgue and a squad of detectives was sent out to look up the mother.

BOY'S CURIOSITY GETS HIM HURT

Youth Is Watching a Fallen Ambulance Horse When the Animal Strikes Him in Struggle to His Feet.

Curiosity got the better of Pinous Sussman, fifteen years old, when an ambulance horse fell, and although he had errands to do he stopped with the crowd. When the horse in its efforts to recover upset the ambulance Pinous was caught as it fell.

The ambulance had been called from Bellevue to attend Antonio Satoro, who suffered a slight shock at No. 67 Varick street. Dr. Erdman took Satoro to the home of a friend, at No. 321 West Broadway. The driver then drove up Broadway, and at Houston street the horse slipped and fell on the wet pavement.

Young Sussman failed to see the ambulance tipping as the horse struggled to its feet and was caught under it. When rescued he was found to be suffering from many contusions and was placed in the ambulance and taken to the hospital.

FELL TO DEATH IN ELEVATOR HATCH

Man Who Opened Coffee House Daily Found Lifeless in Basement by Fellow Employees, Who Arrived Later.

Charles Dehne, a resident of Union Hill, N. J., and an old employee of Samuel Wilde's Sons & Co., coffee importers at Nos. 9 and 11 Dutch street, fell down an elevator shaft from the third floor at that address to-day and was killed instantly.

It was Dehne's work to open the building daily and raise the hatch which covered the shaft at each floor. It is supposed he lost his balance while raising the third floor hatch. Fellow workmen found him lying dead in the basement when they reached the store.
